

Anișoara Popa is a Habilitated Professor in History, member of Doctoral School of “Dunărea de Jos” University of Galați, Romania, Professor at Cross-border Faculty within this university, and an associate-researcher at the Cross-border Institute of International Studies and Criminal Justice Sciences (ITSIJP). After her studies in History and Philosophy, she obtained her master’s degree in International Relations and European Integration from National School for Political and Administrative Studies, Bucharest, Romania and her Ph.D. in History from “Al. I. Cuza” University, Iași, Romania. She has different publications on the fields of her interests that have been focused on the cultural dimension of the International Relations and on the connection between the Romanian History and the European and World History. She is also interested in the Educational Policy, Internationalization and Quality Assurance in Higher Education. She was the founder and the Editor-in-Chief of Acta Universitatis Danubius. Relationes Internationales (2008-2018) and is also member of the editorial board of some other scientific publications.

For her CV see: http://www.ugal.ro/files/doctorat/sustineri/2019/Prof_AnisoaraPOPA_CV.pdf